EDITOR: Prophet – Shopping fever

I have worked on friday till the midnight (yeah fuckdas!) and I couldn't go shopping earlier. I mean with shopping just to buy something to eat, for the next few days and not the "shopping fever" to buy every shit that have the sticker "20%off". The problem was at this time was every store closed. There where I'm living the last shop closes at 10pm so wtf? Have to go on the next day like in the morning.

The thing was to wake up at 7 am, drink some coffee and move the ass into the shop direction about 8-9 am. Why so early on my free day? Because of the people, at this time I can just go through the shop taking the things that I need very fast, an go out after 10-15 minutes without any waiting shit.

So, I've woke up on the next day like I said and have moved my ass into the shop. It was about 9 am and what have I seen there? A bunch of people! There wasn't even a little space to put the finger through! Fuck I was shocked. I thought that I would be the only person at this early morning. But no, the monkeys searching for the food, running in the shop, touching, turning every thing twice looking for the price – omg really ruff morning. Just imagine how long I was there trying to buy my things? An hour! Yes an hour... The first thing is, no place in the shop to go with the basket through it. The second one is the long waiting time for paying by the cash desk.

But it wasn't enough, my favorite things to eat are placed in two shops, this one I've already wrote about and other one about 20 minutes away. Let me now to sum up the time: 1 hour in the first store than 20 minutes driving to the next shop, and the god knows how long to wait in the next store.

Ok, about after 20 minutes have reached the next shop and what have I seen? The next fucking shit. A bunch of monkeys running like in the wildness through the shop searching for the treasures.

20 People waiting to pay by the cash desk and there was just one cash desk opened!

Next time I'm gonna buy my things in the internet! It's healthier for my nervous character.
